

why are there too few woman leaders?

current state of women's leadership in the world

of 190 heads of state - 9 are women

of all the parliaments in the world...
just 13% of members are women

women who choose to be leaders...

"sit at the table"

Women systematically underestimate their own abilities.

Men attribute their success to themselves and women attribute it to other external factors.

Women don't negotiate for themselves in the workforce.

"make your partner a real partner"

There is a power of equality in marriage/committed relationships as far as the distribution of responsibilities and also the society being more supportive of those who choose to work from home. This makes an enormous difference for women's success.

"don't leave before you leave"

Women are "mentally leaving" or taking the foot off the gas pedal of their careers as they start to envision having families and children, often far in advance of these events happening. Stay in the game until you are really leaving.
